

Question Mark Hides The Last Tragic Act Of Church Murder Drama

REV. E. W. HALL
(BY BOB DORMAN)
NEA Service Staff Writer
EW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Who will write the last act in the tragic drama of the famous Hall-Mills murder mystery?

It waits the skilled and ingenious hand of a master playwright—a super-detective, a superlative Sherlock Holmes.

MRS. ELEANOR MILLS
Tangled threads tie together these chief characters in the drama:
REV. E. W. Hall, rector of a New Brunswick church, one of the victims in the double killing.

MRS. FRANCES HALL
MRS. ELEANOR MILLS, choir singer in Rector Hall's church, the other victim.

JAMES MILLS
JAMES MILLS, husband of the murdered woman.

WILLIE STEVENS
WILLIE STEVENS, brother of Mrs. Hall.

CHARLOTTE MILLS
CHARLOTTE MILLS, 16, daughter of the murdered woman, who has taken the role of Nemesis of the murderer.

RAYMOND SCHNEIDER
RAYMOND SCHNEIDER, 21, informer, and jailed as a witness.

PEARL BAHMER
PEARL BAHMER, 15, held as a witness.

CLIFFORD HAYES
CLIFFORD HAYES, 19, jailed on a charge of murder, and then released. These people all appear in the scenes of the drama already enacted. The tragedy had its opening Sept. 16, on a farm in Somerset county, just across the line from Middlesex county, in which is located New Brunswick.

UNKNOWN
The home of the dead rector and choir singer.

A great question mark stands where the climax should be to these acts in this drama of real life:

ACT I
EARLY morning: a deserted farm house: a meadow tinted with the colors of autumn. Through the meadow stroll a boy and a girl, Schneider and Pearl Bahmer, hunting for mushrooms. In the shade of a bush they find a man and a woman who seem to be sleeping. The man with a straw hat over his face and the woman's head covered by a shawl. Several hours later the boy and girl pass by again, and, looking closer, find the man and woman are dead. Police are notified. The dead pair are Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills, both shot and the woman's throat cut, too.

ACT II
THE breath of scandal. But the slain church people are held blameless. The mystery grows. Officers of the two counties make little progress. Mrs. Hall and James Mills are questioned; also Willie Stevens, brother-in-law of the dead pastor, and young Charlotte Mills. It is learned that Mrs. Hall visited her husband's church at two o'clock on the morning the bodies were found. Mills also visited the church about that time. She sought her husband; he was seeking his wife—but they did not meet. Mrs. (Continued On Page Six)

CHAMBERLAIN SAYS IT WOULD BE CRIMINAL TO BREAK UP COALITION

BIRMINGHAM, ENG., October 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Austen Chamberlain, the government leader, addressing the Midland conservative club here today declared it would be criminal to break up the present coalition in view of the labor menace.

"I don't pretend to say when an election will occur," said Mr. Chamberlain. "I expect it is the undoubted right of the prime minister to choose."

At another point Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I have worked with Mr. Lloyd George in perfect harmony. He has told us, 'I know not when an election will come.'"

Have Secret Indictments

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 13.—(By The Associated Press)—The federal grand jury which has been investigating the shooting of Major Alexander Croukhite at Camp Lewis in 1918, today returned two secret indictments to Judge E. E. Cushman in open court.

The court set the bail on one indictment at $3,000 and ordered that no bail would be set in the other indictment.

District Attorney Thomas P. Revell refused to indicate whether the indictments have to do with the Croukhite case. He said the identity of the persons indicted would not be known for several days.

Bandits Make Liquor Raid

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. (By Associated Press).—A score of bandits boldly invaded the Grommes and Ulrich bonded warehouse a half block from traffic police headquarters, shouldered aside a postman who was being admitted to the building, bound five employees and escaped with 500 cases of liquor loaded on three motor trucks.

At least twenty men were in the band, according to police reports, and before the postman and employees could escape to summon police squads, the robbers with their motor trucks had vanished.

ARMOUR REFUSES TO FURNISH DETAILS

CHICAGO, October 13.—(By the Associated Press).—J. Ogden Armour again today refused to give the federal trade commission which is investigating trading in wheat futures, the figures showing the extent of his grain trading in 1920, 1921 and the early months of 1922. Mr. Armour, on the stand Wednesday had refused to give the details of his grain transactions and was excused until today.

CHICAGO, October 13.—(By the United Press).—J. Ogden Armour, packer and grain dealer, today declined to give the federal trade commission investigating the grain market information regarding his deals in the Chicago board of trade. Armour refused to answer all questions asked by board members. Alfred Austrian, attorney for Armour, stated that he had advised the witness not to answer because he did not have full information regarding the deals. Members of the office have the books which show the deals and these books are under investigation now, Austrian said.

CLEMENCEAU PREPARES FOR TRIP TO AMERICA

PARIS, Oct. 13.—(By The Associated Press).—Former Premier George Clemenceau returned from the country today and began final preparations for his second American trip with as much enthusiasm as for his first trip more than 50 years ago.

He will sail on November 11 and deliver his first lecture at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on November 23, after which he will talk in Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, New Orleans, Washington and possibly Philadelphia.

The Tiger was in the best of spirits on his arrival. He preferred to talk in a joking way of the different interpretations that have been placed on his undertaking, but he refused absolutely to be interviewed as to what his course in America would be. He remarked however, with a twinkle in his eye, that his trip did not please everyone here.

Furthermore, in spite of his aversion to interviews, he made it clear that his voyage was not connected with the program of any political party, that it was arranged entirely outside any political consideration or affiliation. He was going to the United States, he indicated to ask for nothing, to suggest nothing, and with the sole purpose of stating the French case.

He has no plan for American participation in the settlement of European troubles, he made it plain, and will carefully refrain from anything that looks like an appeal to the United States for aid. The aim of his speeches will be to reach American public opinion with what he considers a fair and loyal statement on the final situation.

"I know I'll get a fair hearing," he said, "and that's all I want."

217 Persons Picked Up From Life Boats At Sea; None Lost Or Injured

SAN FRANCISCO, October 13.—(By the Associated Press).—The passengers of the City of Honolulu which burned at sea, were transferred to the United States army transport Thomas, from the rescue ship West Faralon, at dawn today, according to an official message received by the Federal Telegraph Company. The Thomas is due in San Francisco tomorrow, but it is expected she will be at least a day late.

The message said that the City of Honolulu was burned beyond repair and that it would be two days at least before any ship would be able to approach her on account of the intense heat. The message indicated that the transfer of the passengers had been effected without any particular incident.

The official message gave the list from the City of Honolulu as 39 women and 35 men and 187 of the crew.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., October 13.—(By the Associated Press).—The radio man's bridle on space and the fellowship of those who go down to the sea in ships, stand responsible today for the safety of 217 persons—the ship's company of the Steamer City of Honolulu, which burned yesterday.

The readiness with which mariners of "half dozen craft offered themselves for the rescue of their distressed fellow travelers afloat was but an echo of a story first told so long ago that men have forgotten the time of the telling, but the tale of the radio's part belongs to a more modern generation. They mingled, this old thing and this new one, to save life. Early yesterday while she was 670 miles off San Pedro, Calif., fire broke out in the second cabin of the steamer. Unaccountably the flames gained such headway on the lightning crew that two hours later, it was necessary to abandon the ship.

But before that time came, the radio had cried far and wide the "dot dot dot, dash, dash, dash, dot, dot, dot," (SOS) that means disaster, distress and human extremity on the high seas.

Two ships, the Enterprise, of the Matson Line, and the Thomas, an army transport, east bound from Hawaii, caught the signal and turned toward the position the operator had given. A pleasure yacht, the Castana, cruising to Honolulu with a party including Crompton Anderson, brother-in-law of the owner, E. Doherty, who is in New York, caught the appeal, and turned her bow that way. Los Angeles caught the signals and navy vessels stood by to race with death to the scene of the fire.

San Francisco caught the signals, waited a while until the radio operator on a distant ship had turned that vessel too, toward the scene. It was that ship, the West Faralon, M. M. Walk, master, that swept down the sea lanes to the City of Honolulu and effected the rescue.

But she did not get there until more than four hours after the flames had forced the captain, his first officer, the chief engineer and the radio operator to leave the blazing hulk.

The fire broke out between five and six o'clock in the morning. The passengers were put outside at eight; the captain left the steamer a little after 10; the West Faralon arrived about 2:30 in the afternoon.

By a quarter to four the last load of eastwards had been hauled aboard the West Faralon which lay to a mile from the fire-swept vessel and all hands watched her burn. All hands, that is, but the radio operator—he was busy sending messages that told the world the steamer's company was safe and other messages that kept the Thomas steaming southward to provide for the rescued some smoother comfort than the plunking of the West Faralon's decks.

The Thomas' officers planned to transfer the City of Honolulu's passengers early today rather than risk accident in the darkness of the early morning. The Thomas will bring them to San Francisco. They had been bound for Los Angeles.

There, just before the Thomas reached the West Faralon, the story was broken this morning, for shore radio stations ceased communicating with the vessels so that the West Faralon's radio might be used to guide the transport to her. The cessation left much untold—the cause of the fire, the details of the fight against it and those more gripping details.

Trooper Wins Big Money

The following from the Cincinnati Post is of interest here as some Portsmouth race followers have an interest in the Trooper:

"A big stable can break many owners, but on the other hand one horse may mean a fortune."

"Take the case of Bill Hall, owner of Trooper. Hall had practically a one-horse stable. That was Trooper. Last week Hall put Trooper in the same race with Sway. He bet $400 on Trooper, and he won at 6 to 1. He also claimed Sway out of the same race, and after paying the claiming price, still had money left."

"Trooper won again Tuesday and Hall bet $2,000 on him, pulling down something more than $4,000."

"Hall, however, gives his little rider, Nathan Swart, much credit for his sudden wealth. He says Swart is the first boy that ever rode Trooper who could keep that old gelding from running out at the turn."

"The ride Swart gave Trooper will bring him many more mounts. He is not well known in these parts, but he is certain to be in greater demand hereafter."

RED CROSS ACTIVITIES

The past two weeks have been unusually busy ones for the local Red Cross chapter, in which they participated in the activities of the free clinic, held by the State Department of Health at the Gay street Dispensary, for the purpose of examining all children stricken with Trachoma.

One cannot lay too much stress on the fact that trachoma is a disease of the eye that is not only dangerous, but very contagious, often resulting in the loss of vision, if not given proper treatment at the time of discovery. The prevalence of trachoma is very evident throughout the State of Ohio, especially in the southern part, and for this reason, free clinics have been established, and are being carried on for the purpose of arresting the spread of this insidious disease. A survey was made by Dr. Tate, and Dr. Dyar, of the State Board of Health, Miss Ann Gallagher, State Nurse, assisted by Miss Ada M. Lammer, Red Cross Nurse, spending practically two school weeks in the county inspection; the Red Cross chapter furnishing all transportation for this work, as well as financing the entire movement.

During their survey, one hundred and nineteen cases were discovered, at which time, the parents were notified by card regarding the condition of their children. Later a letter was mailed them, urging the necessity of bringing the little ones in for treatment, at the Free Clinic. The literature used for this cause was prepared and mailed by Miss Virginia Life, Secretary of the Red Cross. Out of the one hundred and nineteen cases reported, eight-two were present at the clinic, thirty-five were operated upon, and the remainder were given treatment, all being county cases but one, which means that thirty-four were Red Cross charges as all County work comes under their supervision.

Miss Helen Helt, Red Cross Relief Worker, was on duty at the clinic, giving assistance wherever needed, and keeping a record of all cases treated. Thirty-seven children did not report, but every effort will be made to bring the rest in for treatment or operation, as the case demands. It might be well, at this time to state that it is most essential that all children who were operated upon, report at the clinic at ten o'clock Saturday morning for treatment.

One of the remarkable features of this important event was the fact that there was no confusion, the work being carried on quietly and systematically by the efficient doctors, nurses and social workers who so ably assisted in this wonderful cause of relieving suffering humanity.

Special mention should be made relative to the hearty co-operation and unselfishness on the part of the Bureau of Community Service, who offered the Dispensary, which is maintained by them, and their willingness to render aid wherever needed.

Bearing in mind the fact that untiring effort on the part of each individual must constantly prevail in order to rid the county of the trachoma menace, it is our duty to report any case or cases that come to our attention to the County Health Officer Dr. R. W. DeCrow, of Sciotoville, Ohio.

Special Services Open At Bigelow Sunday

Among the many commendations of Dr. George Hugh Birney, the evangelist who will conduct meetings at the Bigelow M. E. Church next week, is the following from Niel L. Trotter of the Pacific Garden Mission, Chicago, Ill.: "He is a real live wire. First of all he is the right sort of fellow, a real man who knows the pastor's problems. Second, he has the right message—it is vital, clear and decisive. Save Evangelism is his middle name."

A year ago, Dr. Birney held each day a meeting for all the preachers of the Ohio Conference. He delighted them all. Last summer he was chosen the evangelist for the Leimster camp meeting and proved a great inspiration.

His 20 years in the pastorate, his overseas activities, his passion for the salvation of men, his manliness of spirit combine to make him a success. The coming two weeks promise to be notable ones at Bigelow.

Dr. Birney's subjects for the first week, starting Sunday morning, follow:

Sunday, October 15
10:30 a. m.—"The World's Only Portrait of God."
3:00 p. m.—"Mass Meeting for Women and Girls, subject: 'With Mothers and Daughters in the Chambers of Imagery.'"
7:30 p. m.—"The Trumpet and The Sword."

Monday, October 16
No afternoon service.
7:30 p. m.—"The folks Who Snore in Church."

Twenty machines are needed for this purpose but they will not be used in action. Coal Shortage Among Towns In Northern Part Of State CLEVELAND, October 13.—(By the United Press)—An acute coal shortage blocked efforts of the fuel administration today to furnish northern Ohio cities with coal. F. H. Baer, fuel administrator, declared shipments far in excess of normal were necessary to make up the loss suffered during the strike. Shipments now are far below normal because of a car shortage.

"From 222 to 340 cars of coal are reaching Cleveland daily. From 40 to 50 cars go to retail dealers. Under normal conditions 350 cars are received here daily. 65 of them going to dealers. I believe the situation is similar over northern Ohio," said Baer.

OHIO LABOR WANTS DAUGHERTY OUSTED

CANTON, October 13.—(By the United Press)—Organized labor in Ohio today demanded of President Harding that he oust Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty from his cabinet. The action presented in the form of a resolution at the 39th annual convention of The Ohio Federation Of Labor was based on Daugherty's injunction against striking shopmen.

Landis, will come to national headquarters here of the disabled American veterans of the world war, Raymond Lunsane, national adjutant was notified today. The amount will be approximately $72,000. "LARGE ELEVATOR INTERESTS, CAUGHT SHORT, GOT RULING TO FORCE TRADERS ON LONG END TO SELL AT A LOSS"

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(By The Associated Press)—The federal trade commission, in its investigation of the spectacular break in the wheat market last May, looked to J. Ogden Armour today for answers to questions concerning his transactions in grain since the war time ban on trading wheat futures was lifted in July, 1920. When Mr. Armour, characterizing himself as only a "casual trader" in grain, declined Wednesday to furnish details of his board of trade operations he conferred with his attorneys and told the federal inquiry board he would decide today whether he would disclose the requested details of his transactions. Witnesses yesterday, among them Arthur W. Cullen, one of Chicago's heaviest traders on the grain market, testified that large elevator interests, including the Armour Grain Company and the Rosenbaum Grain Company were "short" on the market last May and were principal beneficiaries of the wheat break from $1.46 to $1.16 and were responsible for the emergency car delivery rule which compelled traders on the "long" end to sell at a loss. George E. Marcy, president of Armour Grain Company, who was expected to appear before the commission today had testified that the rule permitting the delivery of grain in cars on track instead of elevators was invoked because all elevators were filled to overflowing and there was no storage room left. Mr. Suttin said one thing that convinced him the rule was invoked to please elevator interests that were "short" was the fact that there were 7,800 cars of wheat on the tracks in Chicago at the time while there were only about 800 cars of other grains. Between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 bushels of wheat were on the tracks while other grains were being stored he said. Mr. Armour had previously testified that he had only general knowledge of the affairs of the Armour Grain Company and declared that Armour and Company, meat packers, did not trade in the grain market. Question Mark

ACT III CHARLOTTE MILLS, the daughter of the murdered woman, becomes the pursuer; she appeals to the governor of the state for aid in solving the mystery. Governor Edwards orders out the state police. Search for the murderer begins in earnest. The bodies are exhumed and an autopsy furnishes clues. Willie Stevens is subjected to an all-night grilling—without result.

ACT IV RAYMOND SCHNEIDER appears in a spectacular role. It is announced that he has made a statement charging that Rev. and Mrs. Mills were killed by Clifford Hayes, a young ex-sailor—by mistake! A case of mistaken identity, he says. Schneider informs police that Hayes accompanied him to help protect Pearl from her father, Nicholas Bahmer—and that Hayes, shooting at the pair in the meadow, thought they were Pearl and her father. Hayes, arrested on a murder charge, denies his guilt. Pearl and Schneider are held as witnesses, and Bahmer is arrested on a serious charge made by Pearl. Schneider repudiates his confession and Hayes is freed.

ACT V THIS is the last act—but it has not been written yet. A question mark stands here—many question marks, such as these: Why was Mrs. Mills' throat cut after the shooting? Where are the pistol and knife—and the rector's missing watch? Why were the bodies arranged carefully in the meadow, with the hat and shawl hiding the faces? Why were letters of Mrs. Mills scattered about the place of the killing? And the big question: Who DID kill Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills?

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—As I want to do some papering, would you be kind enough to tell me how to make the paste, so the paper will stay on?

MARTHA.
Take four pounds of flour and make it into a stiff batter with cold water. Beat it well to break the lumps and add two ounces of pulverized alum. Into this pour boiling water, stirring the batter all the time. As it cooks it swells and loses its white color, and when cold will make about three-fourths of a pint of thick paste. Thin with cold water to adapt it for easy use with the brush. For painted or varnished walls, add one-half ounce of pulverized resin to each two quarts of paste, and reduce the mass with thin gum arabic or glue water. I understand you can buy the prepared paste. Did you inquire at the local paint stores?

Dear Miss Wise—Some time ago, while on a visit to Portsmouth, I met a girl that I loved dearly. On returning to Portsmouth later I learned that she was sent to some reformatory. I would like to write to her, but being a stranger in Ohio I do not know to what reformatory school she was taken. If you can tell me, I shall be very grateful for the information. Although the girl is not the girl I thought she was, I still love her.
THANK YOU.

Since I am not a wizard or a mind reader, I cannot tell you anything about her, without knowing her name. However, if she has been sent to an institution, you can find out when and where she was sent by inquiring at the office of the probate judge.

Dear Dolly—I have noticed in your column several times where some one is raving about the way his wife does. Now, Dolly, God put woman here for a companion, not a slave, so if the men would stay home with friend wife, once in awhile, they would find a lot of difference. Then, also, before marriage, the men need a woman a lot of mushy talk, so how can we blame the women if they want them to keep on feeding such talk? Now, Dolly, I'm not a married man, but a defender of the women forever.
J. G. R.

You're all right, J. G. R., and if you ever get a wife, I hope you will not forget how to treat her.

IGNORANT—Write them another letter and tell them that if they do not refund the money or send you the goods within a certain time, you will take the matter up with the postal authorities, and prosecute them for receiving money under false pretenses.

Dear Dolly—Will you please print in your column the Camp-Fire Girls' headquarters, or the Girl Scout headquarters?

WOMEN AND MEDICINE
In Europe, years ago, a woman named Hildegard wrote a notable book on medicinal plants. In those days the men were too busy bothering about dogmas of religion and medicine, and the study of herbs was thought beneath their notice.

It was the women, however, who mostly conducted the hospitals and cared for the sick, and thus they earned much of great value. They let the men fight out the questions of theories.

Lidia E. Plunkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared almost fifty years ago by a woman, Lidia E. Plunkham, did then, and does now, relieve the ailments peculiar to women. It is a vegetable compound and of great value for this purpose. This is proven day after day, and in your own neighborhood, by grateful women who have used it.

TWELVE TOES was raging as usual.

Twelve Toes, being a Sorcerer, had a perfect right to rage, he thought. Especially when he wasn't having his own way.

He wasn't having his own way now. Not a bit of it! He wanted something very much and he hadn't been able to get it.

You know what it was—the Fairy Queen's magic automobile that Nancy and Nick were riding in.

"The very idea!" roared Twelve Toes. "To think that Light Fingers isn't smart enough to get that automobile for me! He's the best and fairy I've got, better than Comet-Legs or Flap-Doodle or any of them—so something is the matter. I'll have to find out what it is."

He went to his telephone and called up the Sour Old Witch who lived under a waterfall. She was a good friend of his. Maybe she would know what the trouble was.

"Tingling-tingling," went the Sour Old Witch's telephone.

FOWLER'S

BAKED APPLES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh
Of Columbia University

PROBABLY no fruit is enjoyed more universally than the apple when baked. The children enjoy it, and it can be for the school lunch. In dairy lunch places baked apples and cream are in great demand.

Select sound, medium-sized apples. Wash and core. The skin may be removed or left on.

When skin is allowed to remain cut through the skin an inch or two from the stem around the apple. This allows the apple to expand in cooking and it is less likely to lose its shape.

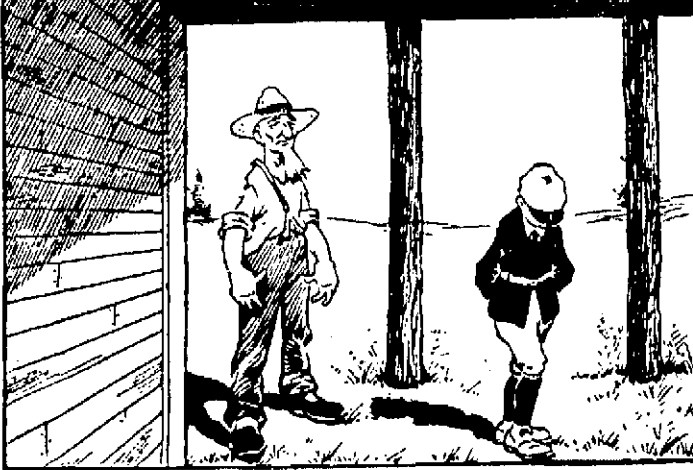

Place apples in a baking pan. Add one tablespoon sugar and one teaspoon butter to each apple.

Pour in enough water to cover pan after the apples have cooked for 10 minutes. Baste often with the syrup formed by cooking.

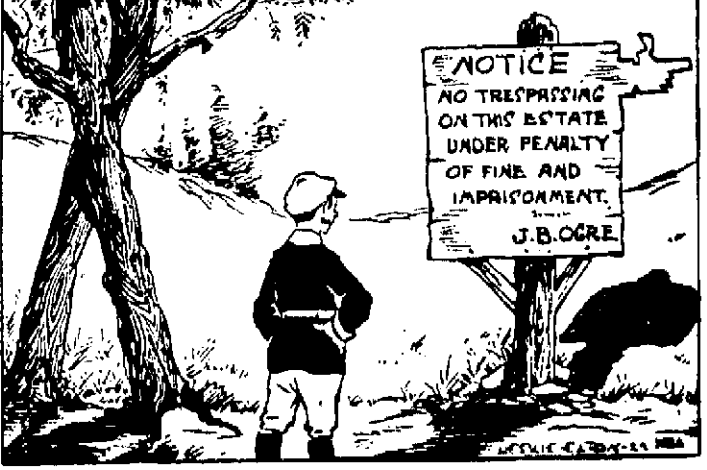

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

Jack rushed across the field, soon meeting a farmer. "Hurry, pleaded Jack, 'my horse just fell and I think his neck's broken.' 'All right, sonny, I'll take care of him,' the farmer said and rushed across the field.

"Well," said the farmer, when he returned, "your horse's neck isn't broken but his feet are. It may be months before he'll be able to walk again. I think you had better leave him here until then." Jack was brokenhearted.

Jack then hurried on as there was nothing to be gained by staying. "Well, I must be nearing the end of my journey," the boy said to himself, after he had read a warning signed by J. B. Ogre "I must be near his dungeon." Continued in next chapter.

White Fined

George White, 24, was convicted under a charge of furnishing liquor unlawfully, at a hearing before Squire George S. Morgan Thursday and the magistrate imposed a penalty of $200 and costs against him.

The arrest of White and two of his female companions, Emma Miller, 25, and Ethel Adams, 23, grew out of two collisions in which the auto they were riding figured near Lucasville Wednesday night. Others in the party were Miss Laura Lewis and Orville Mallard and James Hogan and the driver of the taxi was Charles Rensinger. They were not held and no charges will be pressed against them.

Emma Miller was fined $25 and costs for intoxication when she pleaded guilty, and Ethel Adams was passed a like penalty for a similar offense when she went to trial and was found guilty.

THE WORKING MAN STORE-SELL TO SELL AGAIN

Senator Pomerene Outlines His Views In Great Speech

Raps The Dry Leaders; Says He And Mayor Gableman Sure Winners In November

Speaking without any equivocation, United States Senator Alton Pomerene, regarded as one of the really big men in Washington, a man who keeps in touch with every phase of governmental legislation, addressed an enthusiastic audience in the high school auditorium Thursday night. Music was furnished by the River City band.

Senator Pomerene in no unmistakable terms explained his attitude towards Woman Suffrage, Prohibition, the Esch-Cummings law and many other important matters in the U. S. Senate and laid particular stress on the fact that he always voted with the majority and not with the unscrupulous minority. He was in good voice and was greeted by hearty applause after being introduced by Chairman B. F. Kimble, who paid the distinguished speaker a very worthy and deserving tribute. Edward Westphal presided at the meeting.

Before plunging into his masterly address, Senator Pomerene digressed sufficiently to laud Mayor William N. Gableman, who seeks to succeed Congressman Kearns of this district.

"When you good people of Ohio return me to the U. S. Senate you are going to send your Mayor to Congress along with me. You know his record. I do not have to tell you about his singularly successful administration. It speaks for itself. You know his family and you know he could not do a mean thing."

Senator Pomerene's address in full follows:

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: It is a great privilege to be permitted to come before you on this occasion to answer for my stewardship in the United States Senate. I have no claim to perfection. I have no doubt that I have made mistakes. The man or woman who never made mistakes has not yet been born. But I claim this credit for myself, that I have tried in a conscientious and painstaking manner to study our problems from every angle and to determine them as I believe them to be. During the 12 years I have been in the Senate, numerous important questions have come up from time to time upon which the people were divided. It has happened sometimes that the minority tried to dictate as to what I ought to do. I believe with all my heart and soul in the principle of majority rule, in the honest and uniform enforcement of all laws, in the desire of the average voter to do the right thing when he knows the facts, in treating the producer and the consumer, employer and the employee, absolutely alike, in the protection of the third party—the public—in the fierce conflicts between capital and labor. Our government is a government of majorities. My vote as an individual is mine to cast as I choose. My vote as a United States Senator is mine to cast only as a representative of the people of Ohio. And my views of representative government are such that I feel it is a solemn duty to carry out the wishes of my constituents when they can be ascertained. If it be an offense to aim to do what the majority of voters of Ohio want done, then I have offended, and I am willing to bear the consequences. I see no course for me to pursue except the one marked out by the voters themselves at the ballot box. I cannot do otherwise and be true to my convictions. I am speaking in this vein because I have been told that in this community as well as in some other communities, I have been criticized for having failed to vote on the Woman Suffrage amendment in the Senate. It is true I did not vote for it.

Woman Suffrage Amendment. Three times in five years prior to the adoption of the Federal amendment Ohio voted upon Woman Suffrage. Three times it was overwhelmingly defeated—once by 87,000, once by 182,000, once by 140,000. The 140,000 majority was on a referendum upon the statutes which conferred upon the women the right to vote for Presidential electors. Do we believe in representative government? If we do, do we want our representatives in Congress to vote as the minority wants or as the majority wants? If there are those who believe that I should have followed the view of the minority and defied the will of the majority on the Woman Suffrage amendment, will they please tell me on what other issues I should have defied the majority? Do we believe in majority rule? Do we believe in truly representative government? Do we believe in minority rule?

There is one kind of government in which the minority always rules and that is a democracy. We have Woman Suffrage now and I am glad of it. It is here to stay and I want to remind the good women of Ohio that the duty of government is now to perform on an equal basis with the men. Women can no more neglect their duties as citizens and voters and be true to their country, to their race and to their family. Whether in public life or in private life we are all servants of Uncle Sam's household and we must not neglect this service if we would make our government fill the place which the fathers intended it should fill among the civilized peoples of the world. There was a time when there was a difference of opinion in the United States whether or not women should have the right to vote. That is a dead academic question now. It is a dead lock upon the right of suffrage. It is a duty of government to give men and women to take an intelligent as well as active part in the affairs of state. If we get the kind of men or women on our ballot as, as a rule, because the majority of men and women have not taken the interest in political affairs that ought to be taken. There can be no question about that. Our government is as good as its people, and no government can serve its people to the extent they take an intelligent and active interest in it. It is for this reason every God-fearing man and woman ought to take a very deep interest in government. There are two kinds of sin. One is the sin of commission. One is the sin of omission. When men and women fail to the polls and knowingly of ten days, he would find himself amenable to the criminal provisions of the pending bill. He is absolutely forbidden to prescribe beer, ale, or other matter what the alcoholic content."

My father was a physician for forty years. I have three brothers who have been physicians for years. They have all told me such liquors have a definite therapeutic value. I would rather trust their professional judgment than the political judgment of all the Congress and all the Perley A. Bakers and all the Wayne B. Wheelers in the land.

In this connection the action of the American Medical Association in recent years is significant. As its annual meeting in 1917 that Association adopted a resolution "that the use of alcohol as a therapeutic agent should be discouraged," not prohibited, mind you, but discouraged. At its meeting in Boston four years later in 1921 when a motion was made to reaffirm the action of 1917 it was referred to a committee to report. On May 23, 1922, at its annual convention in St. Louis the Association adopted this resolution: "That the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association in convention assembled, representing a membership of over 50,000 physicians, appeals to the Secretary of the Treasury and to the Congress of the United States for relief from the present unsatisfactory conditions, and recommends that provisions be made for supplying bonded whiskey for medicinal use only, at a fixed retail price to be established by the government." In the preamble to this resolution it is stated that: (1) the results of a referendum conducted by the Journal of the American Medical Association, covering 54,000 physicians indicates that 51 percent of physicians consider whiskey "necessary" in the practice of medicine; (2) the dosage method frequency and duration of administration of this drug in any given case is a problem of scientific therapeutics and is not to be determined by legal or arbitrary dictum; (3) the experience of physicians, as reported in the Journal, indicates that the present method of control, limitation of quantity and frequency of administration, licentiate and supply of a satisfactory product constitutes a serious interference with the practice of medicine by these physicians who are convinced of the value of alcohol in medical practice. This resolution was printed in the Journal of the American Medical Association June 3, 1922.

Now, my friends, I want what I have said with reference to the Woman Suffrage amendment and the Prohibition amendment to be accepted as an explanation and not as a justification for my adverse votes in the Senate on those amendments. I have no apology to make. Under the same circumstances I would again vote the same way. Does it not appear strange to you that in this enlightened age it is necessary for a public official to explain his votes when they are cast uniformly in support of the principle of majority rule?

Esch-Cummings Act While I have been severely criticized in some quarters for voting against the Woman Suffrage amendment and the Prohibition amendment, I have been just as severely criticized because I voted for the Esch-Cummings Act. I hope some of my railroad friends are here tonight to hear what I have to say upon that subject. I am not shirking my responsibility for the support I gave that Act. I not only voted for it but helped to draft it. I would be the last man to claim that it represented the last word in railroad legislation, but I shall continue to defend it until its critics suggest something better. Descriptive criticism is the favorite pastime of too many people. I always listen to constructive criticism. I welcome it. I am not swayed or frightened by destructive criticism no matter how vicious it may be.

What are the provisions of the Esch-Cummings Act most criticized? One of them is this: It is said that Congress guaranteed five and one-half per cent return on the invested capital. Congress did nothing of the kind. What did it do? Bear in mind that at the time the Esch-Cummings bill was passed the railroads had to pay as high as seven and four-tenths per cent interest for money with which to pay off maturing bonds that were drawing four and five per cent. The great Pennsylvania railroad could not borrow money for less than 7 1/2 per cent. In the money markets it was thought that we would help stabilize credit if we lay down some rule for the guidance of the Interstate Commerce Commission; so for the first time in our history Congress said in substance that traffic rates should be such as to bring a fair return on the invested capital. Is there anything wrong about that? Why, if the Interstate Commerce Commission had less its action would be regarded as confiscatory. Then we added: For the period of two years from March 1, 1920, the Congress of the United States is of the opinion that five and one-half per cent on the invested capital would be a fair return, and the Interstate Commerce Commission, in its discretion, increase it to six and one-half per cent to be used only for improvements and betterments, but under no circumstances distributed among the stockholders. The members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, or at least two of them, said they never took into consideration that provision of the law in fixing the rates. Remember that at the time rates were being fixed, when we turned back the railroads to their owners on March 1, 1920, it was known that there would have to be some readjustment of wages and that would take time. So we guaranteed wages for six months the same as they were the last months of government operation. Having guaranteed a continuance of the then existing wage scale, and the railroads having to carry out contracts made by the government, we guaranteed to the railroads, for six months only, the same return they received during the war period. During the first year succeeding the passage of the Esch-Cummings Act net returns to all railroads in the country were 23 of 1 percent and yet they say we guaranteed the rates! If so, every railroad has a claim against the government for at least five and one-half per cent, but no one has yet heard of a railroad that has asked for it. It was simply in the form of a suggestion to the Interstate Commerce Commission that in the judgment of Congress five and one-half per cent would be a fair return, and that provision expired by limitation on September 1, 1920. You cannot run railroads successfully any more than you can run any other business successfully, unless those who have their money invested are given a fair return.

At the time the Esch-Cummings Act was passed the railroads as a whole were valued at between eighteen billions and twenty billions of dollars. The Interstate Commerce Commission fixed the value for rate making purposes at $19,200,000,000. The net profits of all railroads for the year beginning March 1, 1920, were only $60,000,000 in round numbers, or three-tenths of one per cent on the entire valuation. This sum included a claim of $60,000,000 which the railroads had against the Government, for carrying mail, which the Government disputed, but which was paid during the year.

Refuted to Fair Return

Every man is entitled to a fair return on his investment, and if some critics could bear in mind that railroads are not run as they were years ago, they would be able to better comprehend our present railroad problems. Some people think it is good policy to bait railroads. They forget that instead of Wall Street owning them, they are now owned very largely by hundreds of thousands of stockholders representing the great Democratic System is owned by 140,000 stockholders, many of them widows and orphans and trust estates. The 20 largest stockholders own less than ten per cent of the total stock.

The other provision of the Esch-Cummings Act which comes in for the most criticism relates to the Railroad Labor Board. I desire to discuss it briefly, and I want to have a heart to heart talk with you about it. You remember that Mr. Glenn Plumb appeared before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce in support of his so-called Plumb Plan to take over all the railroads. The railroads were then believed to be worth between 18 and 20 billions of dollars, as heretofore stated, and the Interstate Commerce Commission fixed the valuation at $19,200,000,000. At the time Mr. Plumb presented his Plan (1919) the bonds which you bought, the Liberty Bonds, were quoted at 85 cents on the dollar. If we had issued from eighteen billion to twenty billion additional bonds and thrown them on the market, what would have been the rate of decline on your Liberty bonds? Where would you have secured the money to finance Mr. Plumb's Plan?

There was the worst feature about the Plumb Plan, however. It contemplated that our entire transportation system should be under the management of a board of directors, of 15 men, five to be chosen from the employees, five to be chosen from the officer class—and bear in mind the officer class would not have one dollar's worth in the railroads—and five to represent the public. In other words, there would be ten railroad men and five representing the public on the board of directors. How soon would these railroads pay for themselves under these circumstances? Do you want the Plumb Plan? Does any one want it now? Does it occur to you, when not only our own nation but the whole world is disturbed financially, that we had better wait until normal conditions are restored before beginning a scheme so revolutionary as that proposed in the Plumb Plan, even if it were sound?

Socialism contemplates the public ownership of property to be controlled and operated by the public for the public. The Plumb Plan contemplated the public ownership of the railroads for a class. As already stated, the railroads were to be taken over by purchase or condemnation and paid for with cash or bonds of the whole people, and then turned over to the National Railway Operating Corporation of 15 directors, ten of whom were to be railroad class, and five official employees. As neither class of those employees would have had any stock their interests would have been one and the same as against the public. In other words, twenty billion dollars worth of property bought by money belonging to people was to be turned over to two million railroad men representing, perhaps, including families, ten million. Was the Plumb Plan for the benefit of the "masses"? In my judgment the Plumb Plan was the most vicious piece of legislation that has been presented to Congress since I have been in the Senate. I would have felt that I was contributing to the ruin, not only of the transportation system of the country, but to its financial and industrial breakdown, if I supported it. It would have led not only to the ruin of the whole people but to every railroad man as well. I was against it the moment I understood what it contemplated, and I am against it now.

Hint At Revolution

It is interesting to recall that when Mr. Plumb and his associates went before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce to present their so-called Plan, if they did not get what they wanted there might be a revolution. I am not guessing at this, I was on the scene. And when the cosmopolitan papers began to criticize their attitude they hastened to explain that they did not mean revolution by violence, but a social revolution. At that time there were not only actual strikes, but threatened strikes. You will agree with me that the majority ought to control, and that the minority ought not to control. There are one hundred and ten million people in our country with various activities—manufacturing, mining, agriculture, commerce—and transportation is the key to all of them. Should transportation be stopped because there happens to be a difference of opinion between management and men? Should our industries be suspended because they cannot get transportation? I distinguish, my friends, between industrial conditions and conditions in transportation because transportation is a quasi public service, because it is a key industry of the government, if you please. It should always be remembered that the provisions of the Esch-Cummings Act refer only to interstate commerce and to railroad disputes—never to industrial disputes—and that they apply to railway executives and employees alike. There are no provisions applying to the men that do not apply to the executives as well.

Let us consider what the consequences would be if there should be a general suspension of traffic throughout the country. I need not tell you because you know the very moment locomotives would cease to run and the cars to be drawn, manufacturing would stop, mining would stop, commerce would stop. In the great centers of population the food supply would be exhausted within ten days. So would the coal supply. As the result the poorer people in all the centers of population would starve and freeze.

Railroad Labor Board

Does anybody think that because there might be a difference of opinion between railroads and management that the great organized public should be made to suffer? I did not think so when the Esch-Cummings Act was passed, and I do not think so now. So long as we have capital and labor, and that will be until the end of time, there will be differences and disputes. I am touching upon the merits or the demerits of these disputes. They are bound to occur. Under the Esch-Cummings Act we say both to the men and to the management it is your duty to settle your differences without interruption of traffic, to settle them by conference if you can. We hope you will, if you cannot we have established a government tribunal, known as the Railroad Labor Board, composed of three men representing labor, three to be chosen by the President to represent the railroads, and three to be chosen by the President to represent the public, all of them to be confirmed by the Senate. Then we say to the railroads and the men, if you cannot settle your differences by conference submit them to the Railroad Labor Board for its consideration and decision. That is the point. The government owes a duty to the great unorganized public, to the people in the cities and to the people on the farms, as well as to the railroads, their officers and employees. How can we justify letting people starve and freeze in the centers of population while food is rotting in the fields and the coal lying at the mouth of the mines for lack of transportation facilities? Reverse the situation and put the public in the place of the railroad executives and men, and the railroad executives and men in the place of the public. Then how long would either the railroad executives or the men stand for such a situation? "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." Let me give you an illustration:

Suppose the railroad executives would institute a lockout and stop all transportation and there were suffering and distress and starvation and freezing in the centers of population. If that were brought about by a lockout what punishment should be meted out to the railroad executives? But is there less suffering if this condition is brought about by strikes in interstate commerce? Would suffering and distress and starvation and freezing be less? No. It is one and the same thing, and for that reason it has seemed to me as I have studied our railroad problem for twelve long years that the management and men ought to settle their differences first among themselves if they can, and if they cannot, then the Government should step in, establish a fair tribunal, and it should decide. That is the situation. And there would be less suffering and more happiness if the order of the Labor Board had been complied with by both management and men. I do not want to be misunderstood. Some time ago the railroad executives were called before the Board. Some of them said they would not comply with the order of the Board requiring them to have their quarrels made in their shops. They took the position that the Labor Board has exceeded its jurisdiction when it ruled that they must not make further contracts for repair work outside their shops. They made a mistake. They should have complied with the order of the Board. I do not mean to say they did not have the right to seek to determine the jurisdiction of the Board, but they could have said we are going to appeal from your decision to the courts, but meanwhile to show our good faith we are going to do as you want done until the courts decide one way or another.

Later, when the Board ruled that wages should be reduced railway labor leaders said they would not adhere to that decision, and the strike ensued. There they made a mistake. It is true they quoted the fact that the executives had been the first to challenge the authority of the Board, and that they used that fact as an excuse to justify their own action. They were not in a right mind. Both the railroad executives and the railroad men were in duty bound to comply with the orders of the Board, and if they had there would have been more happiness and the men would today have millions more in wages than they do have. Am I right or am I wrong?

Now, my friends, I have said enough with respect to these matters that you may understand what my view is, whether or not you approve it. There is another situation. Republish Tariff Legislation In 1920 the Republicans presented their platform. In it they gave us 100 per cent of promises. During the 2 years they have been in absolute control of the Government they have given us about 1 per cent of performances. They were swept into power by a majority exceeding 7,000,000 in the country at large and more than 400,000 here in Ohio. Today you cannot find 400,000 men and women in Ohio who will admit they voted the Republican ticket. Do you know of any Democrat who will admit he voted the Republican ticket? I do not, and I have met hundreds if not thousands in the 25 or 30 counties I have visited during the past month. What have our Republican leaders in Washington done since they have been in complete control? You remember that as far back as 1918 after the Republicans had won the Congressional election Mr. Fordney gave out an interview stating he would call the minority members of the Ways and Means Committee together, and they would have the tariff and revenue legislation ready to present when the Republican Congress was called in extra session after March 4th, 1919. That Congress was organized, lived and died and did nothing either on tariff or revenue legislation.

In January, 1920, they began to take testimony on the Tariff bill and the President signed the bill only a few days ago, in September 1922. They were about 18 months making the history of our government to write a tariff law, and not even the experts know now just what kind of a law we have.

Highest Rate Known

The Payne-Aldrich bill carried the highest rates known up until the time it was enacted into law. Its rates aggregated something like 40 or 41 per cent on the average. It was enacted in 1909. The rates under the Underwood-Simmons bill which was the law from 1913 to 1922 averaged about 20 or 22 per cent. But under the Fordney-McCumber bill the rates in many instances will be almost twice as high, when you speak of the revenue rules and take into consideration the present high prices compared with the former low prices. Why were these tariff rates thus raised? To make the products get more or what they have to sell. Now we hear the cry on the part of the retail dealers that this will increase the cost of living to the customers. Senator Smoot and other Republicans say that if the retail dealers increase the cost of their goods they will be profitable. I used to have a great deal of respect for Senator Smoot's ability in figures. He cannot bring enough foreign talent into Ohio to convince the majority of our voters that there has not been too much wiggling and wobbling both in Washington and in Columbus during the last two years. It cannot bring enough foreign talent into Ohio to convince the majority of voters that either the Republican administration at Washington or the Republican administration in Columbus has reduced the high cost of living or conducted the affairs of government on a business basis. It cannot bring enough foreign talent into Ohio to convince the majority of voters that the present Congress is not the most inefficient we have had during the past decade, and that there has been and is a woeful lack of leadership both in Washington and Columbus and that too many promises made in 1920 have not been fulfilled.

I am getting mighty homesick from Ohio in Congress, but I want to assure you that after March 3rd next there still will be one Democratic United States Senator from Ohio, and there will be 12 or 15 Democratic Congressmen from Ohio, and one of them is going to be from the Third District—Warren Gard.

Our next Governor will be a Democrat, too—Vic Donahue, who will receive such an overwhelming majority that he will carry the entire state ticket and the legislature with him.

On the judicial ticket we have for the supreme court candidates Judge T. D. Price and Judge Stanley Matthews, both splendid lawyers, and both deserving unqualified support. For Judge of the Appellate Court we have as our candidate H. L. Fennell, who has served you well and who will continue to serve you well, and I bespeak for him your warm and hearty support.

Heart-To-Heart Talk

And now, my friends, I have talked longer than I intended, but I wanted to have a heart to heart talk with you. That is my way of doing business. When I reach the point where I cannot discuss public affairs and my record with utter frankness and from every standpoint I shall voluntarily retire from public life. I want you to know this: I always have tried to keep before me the composite picture of the average Ohioan, and if I can find out what the average Ohioan wants that he will get it. I can bring it to him. I am not the type of man that can be pushed into a corner by irresponsible radicals, grabbed by the throat, and told to deliver. I am not made of that kind of stuff.

Advancement Marks New Republic

Fifth Article---Czechoslovakia

By James M. Cox, Ex-Governor of Ohio

In many respects, Czechoslovakia seems to be the most prosperous country in Europe. There were more buildings going on in Prague than in any other city twice its size. Capital is seeking employment. Some two or three large modern hotels are in process of construction; the industrial situation is good; the crops seem to be above the average; the people are contented with the new order, and a long period of tranquility is in prospect.

The Bohemian language is being taught and the Slovaks, Moravians and Germans are impressed with the progressive tendencies of the government. Masaryk, the venerable president, is beloved by his countrymen and his very able aide, Minister Benes, is regarded as a real asset to the country. Masaryk is over 70 years old. He is an enthusiastic horseman and his interest in the development of the new country is so well sustained that he keeps abreast of the younger group of statesmen.

The feeling is general that when Masaryk retires, Benes will succeed him as president.

Benes is only 38 years old. His life reads like a romance. The son of a peasant family, his imagination was deeply stirred by the intellectual group which resolved almost a century ago that even in the face of imposed obstacles the Bohemian traditions would be kept alive. As he put it, the entire system, governmental, industrial, educational and religious, was slowly undergoing a development based upon the objective of creating a German state.

The army officers, the bankers, the entire official force, and the church, for the most part operated together. The intellectual groups preached the gospel of a sustained spiritual resource. The peasants particularly, were told that they must not give up hope.

Benes' Rise Due To His Own Efforts

Benes' career was resolved upon when he was in his teens. At the age of 18 he went to Paris, working in a factory, attending night school, contributing articles to those newspapers which remained true to the old Bohemian idealism, and when he was 21 received his degree at the university. He spent a year in London studying the English system of government and the same length of time in Berlin and St. Petersburg. Returning to his native country, he associated himself with Masaryk in the University of Prague. He has remained a faithful and useful subordinate ever since.

We lunched together on his desk in the old castle. He is a man not over five feet in height, weighs about 150 pounds, keeps himself fit physically with tennis and horseback riding, and in his work combines the qualities of imagination and efficient administration. He has the most comprehensive grasp of the affairs of his country, and realizes not only the opportunities that lie ahead for Czechoslovakia, but the obstacles as well. He summed up the situation in these words, "We are getting along pretty well, but we have a lot to do."

Recognizing that the solution to the land problem was of vast importance, the government courageously took hold of it. One-third of the land was owned by landlords who parceled out their acreage in small tracts to tenants. When one looks across the narrow strip that is allotted to a single family, because men, women and children work the fields together, he realizes how intensive the effort must be to scrape a bare living out of the soil. The landlord, of course, has profited by the close cultivation of every acre. The land kings have lived in their stone castles, the lords of all they surveyed, and controlled by the idea that if the peasants were given an opportunity to live, the system was equitable all round.

Broken For People

Under the existing arrangement no one man can own more than 250 hectares or 625 acres. The administration of this law is proceeding slowly and constructively. In splitting up the landed estates, the government decrees the price. There is nothing arbitrary about it, because the right to appeal is allowed. In some dispositions recently made of land of average fertility, prices ran as low as $30 an acre. In some instances, tracts have been divided with prices running as high as $150 an acre.

Not One Man In A Hundred Who Is Not Constipated!

...and who is not seeking merely a laxative, but permanent bowel regulation. Many say "old thing" will move the bowels, but to regulate them, that is a different matter. Shamrock Stomach Laxative and Liver Tablets does this little trick—ethically, scientifically and satisfactorily—without nausea or distress. One dose will convince the most unfeeling skeptic of their superior merit. All drug stores. Price 25 cents.

One million, six hundred thousand acres were owned by the Hapsburgs, and came to the government. These will be turned over to the tillers of the soil. The payments run over a period of 15 years. All oil rights are retained by the government. The Standard Oil Company has recently made contracts with the government covering extensive fields. The result of the new land policy will mean a more widely diffused prosperity in the agricultural sections.

Some very interesting things are found in the new constitution of the country. In fact, here is the very expression of advanced ideals. A new nation dominated by progressive principles has translated its spirit into a charter of government. For that reason great interest centers in the new endeavor.

Every one of the required age is obliged to vote. Exception is made in favor of persons seventy years of age or over, and those who are ill. Whoever, without reasonable ground, fails to take part in an election is liable to a fine of from 20 to 5000 crowns, or to a term of imprisonment from 24 hours to one month. The various political parties present the lists of candidates. Fourteen days before election there is published in the official journals of the local constituency the lists that are found valid and such information as will be of interest to the electorate.

The ballots are placed in the hands of the voters at least three days before the election. The cost of printing the ballots is assumed by the government and the political parties. Elections take place on Sundays. Members of the Chamber of Deputies must be at least 30 years of age, and no voter can participate in the election of these members who is not 21. The members of the Senate shall be 45, and the voters participating in the election of this branch must be 26. Men and women are equally eligible to vote and hold office.

Local autonomous government is created in counties and districts, thus giving to racial minorities and the communities themselves, control over provincial matters.

Constitutional questions are decided by the constitutional court, appointments to which are made by the president of the republic, the Chamber of Deputies, the Senate, the Diet of Roumania. Four members each are taken from the ranks of the Supreme Court of Justice and the Supreme Administrative Court. The members of the Constitutional Court serve for a term of ten years.

The question whether a particular law is in conflict with the constitution cannot be considered by the Constitutional Court except on the motion of the Supreme Court of Justice or the Supreme Administrative Court, the Electoral Court, the Chamber of Deputies, the Senate or the Diet of Roumania. Resolution to carry such a motion must be based upon a majority of the above mentioned bodies in each case, within three years at least of the date on which the law was promulgated.

Parliament, Not People, Name President

The president of the republic convokes, prorogues, terminates and dissolves parliament, but he is compelled to assemble the parliament at least twice a year to regular session. Sessions must be held also on the request of a qualified majority of either branch. The president is not allowed to exercise the right to dissolve parliament during the last six months of his term of office.

The president is chosen by the two chambers of parliament for a term of seven years, and must be at least 35 years of age. His election is valid only if half of all the members of both chambers are present, and if a majority of three-fifths of those present shall be obtained. If two ballots produce no result, a third shall be cast to decide between the two leading candidates. If there is then a tie, the decision is made by lot. No one shall be elected president more than twice in succession, but after a period of seven years he may be re-elected. The constitution specifies that these provisions shall not apply to the first president of the republic.

Local autonomous government is created in counties and districts, thus giving to racial minorities and the communities themselves, control over provincial matters. The opening paragraph of the constitutional charter says: "The people are the sole source of all state power in the Czechoslovak republic. This constitutional charter determines through what organs the sovereign people shall express their will in laws, provides for the execution of these laws and guarantees to the people their rights and liberties. Such limitations are imposed upon these organs of government as shall preserve to the people all the rights guaranteed by this charter. The Czechoslovakian state shall be a democratic republic."

There are 300 members of the Chamber of Deputies; the Senate consists of 150 members. Both are elected for a six-year term. Only with consent of the two branches of the parliament shall members become liable to civil or criminal prosecution.

The ministers of the government have the right to participate at any time in the meetings of either chamber or of the committee. Permission must be granted to speak whenever they demand to be heard. Either chamber or a committee can summon a minister before it; otherwise he may be represented by an officer of his department. Any law which involves the expenditure of money must be accompanied by an estimate of the amount involved and a plan for the defraying of the cost.

Speed Provided For New Laws

The Senate shall act on a bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies within six weeks, and on the budget and army bills within one month. The Chamber of Deputies shall act on any bill passed by the Senate within three months. A measure passed by the Chamber of Deputies shall become law despite an adverse decision by the Senate if the Chamber declares by a majority of 50 per cent of all its members that it adheres to its first decision. Should the Senate reject a draft bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies by a majority of all its members, the bill becomes a law provided that the Chamber re-enacts its decision by a three-fifths majority of all its members. Proposals of the Senate shall be referred to the Chamber of Deputies.

Should the Chamber reject a proposal of the Senate and if the latter re-enacts its bill by a 50 per cent majority of all its members, the bill shall be referred back to the Chamber of Deputies. If the Chamber then rejects the bill for the second time by a majority of 50 per cent of all its members the bill so rejected may not be presented to either Chamber until after the lapse of one year. If parliament refuses to pass a bill presented by the government, the latter can proclaim a referendum, but only in the event that the government action is unanimous.

The president shall represent the state in its relation with other states and shall negotiate and ratify international treaties. Commercial treaties and treaties which for the state or its citizens entail financial or personal burdens, especially military burdens as well as treaties affecting the territories of the state, require the affirmation of parliament. The president nominates university professors, judges, all state officials and army officers from the sixth class upward. Every motion for a lack of confidence in the government shall be signed by not less than 100 deputies and shall be referred to a committee which must report thereon in ten days. The government itself may bring before the Chamber of Deputies a proposal for a vote of confidence, but this proposal shall not be referred to a committee.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE PREACHING PROPHET, MINISTRY OF JOHN

BY H. A. WRIGHT

The Gospels make much of the work of John, as the forerunner of Christ. Matthew devotes the third chapter to John; Mark begins with him; Luke devotes his third chapter to John's ministry; and the Gospel according to John follows its introduction with the account of John the Baptist's witness to Christ.

Luke follows out with the relation between Mary and Elizabeth, but we know nothing of John's boyhood and early manhood, except that he lived in the hill country of Judea. We know, however, that he "betrook himself to the desert (Luke 1:80) and there lived that he might better see the face of God. Locusts and wild honey was his food, while his clothing was a rude cloak of women camel's hair, with a leathern girdle about his loins. The Holy Ghost, who had been working in him; and the hand of the Lord, which had been laid upon him from the first; his own constant brooding over the words of prophecy; and a deep intuitive reading of the signs of the times—these would gradually bring him to a clear knowledge both of his function as a prophet and of the time when he must begin to exercise it." It is a great thing for one to discover his place in the world. John had done this. His teaching was straight, stern, and searching. He did not mince his words, or seek to favor the few of his followers, or stand in awe of man. "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" That God had sent him to prepare the way of Christ, he knew with untroubled assurance. That he was not the Christ was equally certain to him. So he accepted his place, did his work, yielded to the Lord when his time came, and passed away, having accomplished his life's mission and never having claimed more than his own. Any one who discovers God's plan for him in the world and accepts it, will make of life its greatest possible success.

John as a forerunner of Christ makes this instructive testimony concerning him. The first essential for anyone who would be saved is to deal with sin; and this Christ does through the atonement on the cross. We can never omit the cross and truly understand Christ; and the true messenger of the gospel still must say: "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." Those who repented could at least manifest their repentance through his ministry by their baptism in the waters of the Jordan, as an indication of death to their old life and their resurrection, as it were, to a new life of goodness.

John the Baptist, announces the beginning of the Kingdom of God, which to him meant the reign of God. Repent that God may reign! Be so sorry of your misdoings that you will hate sin and turn from it to God. That is still the proper preparation for Christ. Repentance includes two opposite emotions: hatred and love. Hatred of sin, love of God; and the more you love God the more you will hate sin. To prepare your own heart for God is to repent in this way. To prepare other people for God is to lead them to repentance as John did. We may all be this kind of forerunner for Christ, first preparing our own heart that he may reign there, and then showing other people how hateful sin is and how loving and lovable Christ is.

PROF. PEPP TO BE CLEVER SHOW

To aspire to be a movie star, thrilling reel after reel over the heroic deeds of the gallants of the silver screen, only to awaken to the cruel realization that she is just a little servant girl, doomed to shine only in the kitchen with the pots and pans as the only inspiration to noble deeds, is the plight of Patricia Higgins, in Prof. Pepp to be given in the High School Auditorium on Thursday and Friday evenings, October 19th and 20th. This character, with its whimsical, eccentric comedy, is most admirably portrayed by Miss Jane Snyder, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Snyder, of Second street. Edith Miller, of the Miller Producing Company, of Charleston, W. Va., who is staging Prof. Pepp, is most enthusiastic over the local talent secured for staging the play. The show is being given for the benefit of Mercy Hospital, and judging from the sale of tickets, a large crowd will fill the High School on both evenings scheduled.

Trachoma Is Success

The Trachoma Clinic held at the dispensary building, Wednesday and Thursday of this week closed yesterday afternoon, there being in all thirty-five operations performed by Dr. Eldridge and his assistants.

This small figure shows that trachoma is on the decline in this section due to the proper and careful preventative measures used by local health workers. The Clinic was a great success, and Bureau of Community Service, Red Cross, and Health officials, under whose supervision it was held, believe that the war against the eye disease is making good headway.

SUNDAY RALLY DAY; GOAL IS 10,000

While politics have begun to warm up in these parts owing to the nearness of election day, there is one chain of citizens who will taboo "if" for at least a few days—namely the Bible School Superintendents of Portsmouth, who are bending every effort to make next Sunday the banner rally day of the year. To this end the superintendents have lined up their forces and the city has been thoroughly combed in the quest of attendants next Sunday.

The superintendents realize there has been a sort of lull on the Bible school attendance for the past few weeks—the absence of "pep" has been quite noticeable. Thanks to the enthusiasm engendered by the efforts of the superintendents, the entire Bible school membership has awakened to the possibilities of rally day next Sunday and unless all signs fail and the weather remains ideal the hopes of the workers will be crowned with success, and their aim of 10,000 realized.

A broad invitation—one capable of covering the entire city, has been extended to attend Bible school. It is fall rally day—a day when every person is asked to be counted in some

Bible school class. With an attendance of 10,000, the superintendents feel that the schools will gain such an impetus that they will be carried along throughout the winter without much stressing of efforts. Every person who attends religious services gets some good—lasting good—something that will help him along life's highway. A person feels better and is better for giving some thought and personal attention to the religious side of life.

If the general call is heeded, next

Sunday is going to be the banner Sunday school day in Portsmouth's history. The superintendents and helpers are working toward that end with a zeal and enthusiasm that is bound to succeed. You are asked to be one of the ten thousand—you and your neighbor. Come!

United States Senator Altee Pomerene, who spoke to a large audience here last night, will be the main speaker at a big Democratic rally in Chillicothe tonight.

Chinaman Tells Mother Of Missing Girl That Her Daughter Is Dead

PITTSBURGH, October 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Police have searched for a week for Clara Marko, a waitress, also known as "Betty Meyers." No trace of her could be found. Her mother answered a rap at the door of her humble home and there stood a Chinaman. He carefully inquired if that was the home of "Betty." The eager mother assured him and he whispered: "Your daughter dead."

He dashed from the steps and before the startled mother could make an outcry he had disappeared.

Today police were searching Chinatown. They were also hunting for a northside youth with whom the girl was friendly. He is missing from his usual haunts, police say.

COAL SHORTAGE IN CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, Oct. 13.—A severe coal shortage exists in Chillicothe and an extended cold snap would work a tremendous hardship on many persons. Plumbers on Thursday confirmed the above and declared that they are being rushed to the limit in demands for gas attachments so that at least temporary relief may be secured.

It develops that many of the large buildings in the city, which rely on steam plants are either entirely out of coal or have only a very small supply on hand. Landlords are putting off furnishing heat to the last possible moment and are making an effort to conserve what coal they have.

Claim Attempts Made To Frame Fights In Chilly

The Chillicothe Gazette says: Charges that attempts were made to frame two of the boxing bouts staged here Tuesday night, coupled with general dissatisfaction over the decision in the Wells-Chapman affair, bring forcibly to the attention of all concerned, and particularly the boxing commission, that steps must be taken to the extent of prosecution, to keep the game free from this stigma, or else call it off here. The fact that the breath of scandal has touched ring activities here is enough to demand a thorough and searching investigation into allegations freely made, and partly substantiated, and the taking of suitable action to insure that boxing bouts in the future will be free from this searing touch.

K. Of C.'s Observe Columbus Day

Columbus Day was celebrated by the Fourth Degree members of the Knights of Columbus with a banquet and dance held last evening with invited guests present from Ironton and Chillicothe. The banquet attended by fifty couples was complimentary to Fourth Degree members while the dance attended by one hundred and fifty couples was complimentary to Third Degree members.

The banquet was held at the Elk's dining room where a well prepared menu was served. Following the banquet the members adjourned to Baesman's dancing academy where the Pavillion Serenaders furnished music for several hours for the dancers.

At the banquet John W. Russell was toastmaster, and the principal speaker of the evening was Charles Mayne, Master of the Fourth Degree at Ironton, whose brief and entertaining talk on a theme of Patriotism, appropriate to the occasion, delighted his listeners.

The FLAMING JEWEL

by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS
© 1922 GEORGE S. DODAN COMPANY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

A great three-cornered duel was being fought in the North Woods for the possession of the priceless gem, the Flaming Jewel. It had first been stolen from the royal casket of the ESTHONIA by the international thief, QUINTANA. In Paris, Mike Clinch had stolen the jewel from Quintana and carried it back to his disreputable hotel at Star Pond, where he hoarded it for the education of his beautiful step-daughter, EVE STRAYER. Then there arrived, JAMES DARRAGH, under the name of HAL SMITH, who had sworn to restore the jewel to the now beggarly countess. Quintana and his gang also arrive to regain the stolen loot. Quintana captures Eve, who is hiding the jewel packet, but she escapes after cruel treatment. She is brought back semi-conscious to Clinch's by STATE TROOPER STORMONT. On entering the camp she drops the packet and it is taken by JAKE KLOON and EARL LEVERETT, two disreputable hangers-on. Clinch swears to wipe out Quintana's gang, and with them, Kloon and Leverett.

Go on With the Story

CHAPTER II

ON the edge of Owl Marsh Clinch halted in the trail, and, as his men came up, he counted them with a cold eye.

"Here's the runway and this here hazel bush is my station," he said. "You fellows do the barkin'. You, Kid Hone, and you, Corny, start drivin' from the west. Harve, you yelp 'em from the north by Lynx Brook. Jim and Byron, you get twenty minutes to go 'round to the eastward and drive by the Slide. And you, Hal Smith," — he looked around — "where'n hell be you, Hal?"

Smith came up from the bog's edge.

"Send 'em out," he said in a low voice. "I've got Jake's tracks in the bog."

Clinch motioned his beaters to their duty. "Twenty minutes," he reminded Hone, Chase and Blommers, "before you start drivin'." And, to the Hastings boys: "If you shoot, aim low for their bellies. Don't leave no blood around. Scrape it up. We bury what we get."

He and Smith stood looking after the five slouching figures moving away toward their blind trails. When all had disappeared:

"Show me Jake's mark," he said calmly.

Smith led him to the edge of the bog, knelt down, drew aside a branch of witch-hopple. A man's footprint was plainly visible on the mud.

"That's Jake," said Clinch slowly. "I know them half-soled boots o' his'n." He lifted another branch. "There's another man's track."

"The other is probably Leverett's."

"Likely. He's got thin feet."

"I think I'd better go after them," said Smith, reflectively.

"They'll plug you, you poor jack-ass—two o' them like that, and one a-settin' up to watch out. Hell! Be you tired o' bed and board?"

Smith smiled: "Don't you worry, Mike."

As he shouldered his rifle and started into the marsh, Clinch dropped a heavy hand on his shoulder; but the young man shook it off. "Shut up," he said sharply. "You've a private war on your hands. So have I. I'll take care of my own."

As he started again across the marsh, Clinch called out in a guarded voice: "Take good care of that packet. If you catch them rats. It belongs to Eve."

"I'll take such good care of it," replied Smith, "that its proper owner need not worry."

CHAPTER III

THE "proper owner" of the packet was at that moment on the Atlantic Ocean, traveling toward the United States.

Four other pretended owners of the Grand Duchess Theodorica's Jewels, totally unconscious of anything impending which might impair their several titles to the gems, were now gathered together in a wilderness within a few miles of one another.

Jose Quintana lay somewhere in the forests with his gang, feverishly planning the recovery of the treasure of which Clinch had once robbed him. Clinch squatted on his runaway, watching the mountain flank with murderous eyes. It was no longer the Flaming Jewel which mattered. His master passion ruled him now. Those who had offered violence to Eve must be reckoned with first of all. The hand that struck Eve Strayer had offered mortal insult to Mike Clinch.

As for the third pretender to the Flaming Jewel, Jake Kloon, he was now traveling in a fox's circle toward Drowned Valley—that shaggy wilderness of slime and tamarac, and depthless bog which touches the northwest base of Star Pond. He was not hurrying, having no thought of pursuit. Behind him plodded Leverett, the trap thief, very, very busy with his own ideas.

To Leverett's repeated requests that Kloon halt and open the packet to see what it contained, Kloon gruffly refused.

"What do we care what's in it?" he said. "We get ten thousand apiece over our rifles for it from them guys. Ain't it a good enough job for you?"

innocent of the role assigned her by Clinch.

For Eve Strayer had never heard where the packet came from or what it contained. All she knew was that her stepfather had told her that it belonged to her. And the knowledge left her incurious.

CHAPTER IV

EVE slept the sleep of mental and physical exhaustion. Reaction from fear bring a fatigue more profound than that which follows physical overstrain. But the healthy mind, like the healthy body, disposes very thoroughly of toxics which arise from terror and exhaustion.

The girl slept profoundly, calmly. Her bruised young mind and body left her undisturbed. There was neither restlessness nor fever. Sleep swept her with its clean, sweet tide, cleansing the superb youth and health of her with the most wonderful balm in the Divine pharmacy.

She awoke late in the afternoon, opened her flower-blue eyes and saw State Trooper Stormont sitting by the window, and gazing out.

Perhaps Eve's confused senses mistook the young man for a vision; for she lay very still, nor stirred even her little finger.

After a while Stormont glanced around at her. A warm, delicate color stained her skin slowly, evenly, from throat to hair.

He got up and came over to the bed.

"How do you feel?" he asked, awkwardly.

"Where is dad?" she managed to inquire in a steady voice.

"He won't be back till late. He asked me to stick around—in case you need anything—"

The girl's clear eyes searched his.

"Trooper Stormont?"

"Yes, Eve."

"Dad's gone after Quintana."

"Is he the fellow who misused you?"

HE BENT OVER HER TO SEE IF SHE HAD ALREADY FALLEN ASLEEP.

"I think so."

"Who is he?"

"I don't know."

"Is he your enemy or your stepfather's?"

But the girl shook her head. "I can't discuss dad's affairs with—"

"With a State Trooper," smiled Stormont. "That's all right, Eve. You don't have to."

There was a pause; Stormont stood beside the bed, looking down at her with his diffident, boyish smile. And the girl gazed back straight into his eyes—eyes she had so often looked into in her dreams.

"I'm to cook you an egg and bring you some pie," he remarked, still smiling.

"Did dad say I am to stay in bed?"

"That was my inference. Do you feel very lame and sore?"

"My feet burn."

"You poor kid! . . . Would you let me look at them? I have a first-aid packet with me."

After a moment she nodded and turned her face on the pillow. He drew aside the cover a little, knelt down beside the bed.

Then he rose and went downstairs to the kitchen. There was hot water in the kettle. He fetched it back, bathed her feet, drew out from cut and scratch the flakes of granite-grit and briar-points that still remained there.

From his first-aid packet he took a capsule, dissolved it, sterilized the torn skin, then bandaged both feet with a deliciously cool salve, and drew the sheets into place.

Eve had not stirred nor spoken. He washed and dried his hands and came back, drawing his chair nearer to the bedside.

"Sleep, if you feel like it," he said pleasantly.

As she made no sound or movement he bent over to see if she had already fallen asleep. And noticed that her flushed cheeks were wet with tears.

"Are you suffering?" he asked gently.

"No. . . . You are so wonderfully kind. . . ."

"Why shouldn't I be kind?" he said, amused and touched by the girl's emotion.

"I tried to shoot you once. That is why you ought to hate me."

He began to laugh: "Is that what you're thinking about?"

"I—never can—forget—"

"Nonsense. We're quits anyway. Do you remember what I did to you?"

He was thinking of the handcuffs. Then, in her vivid blush he read what she was thinking. And he remembered his lips on her palms.

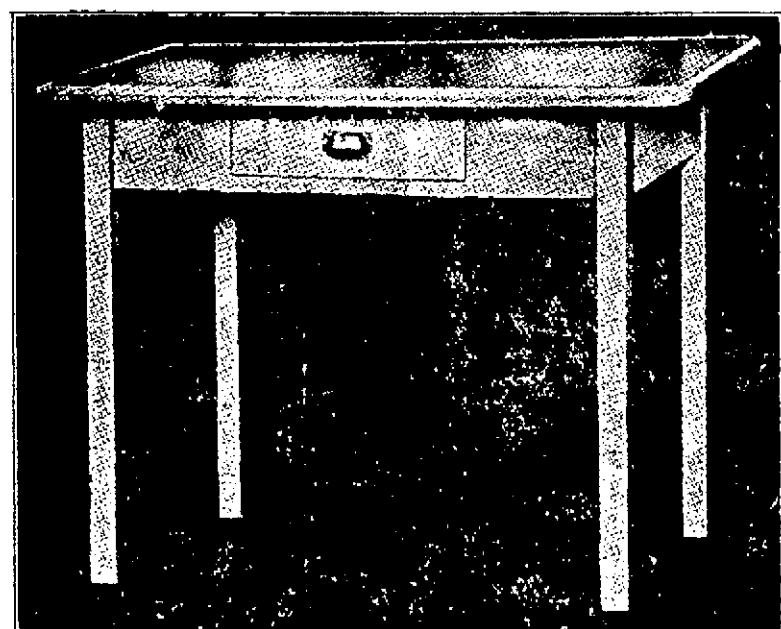

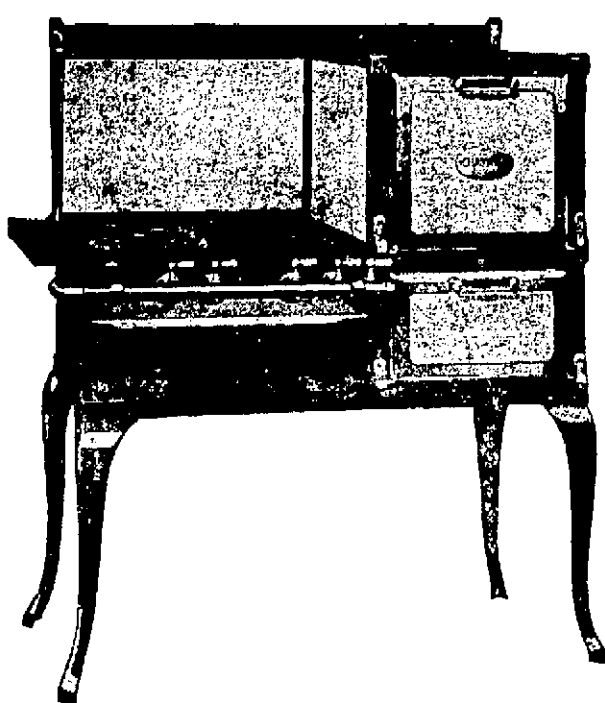

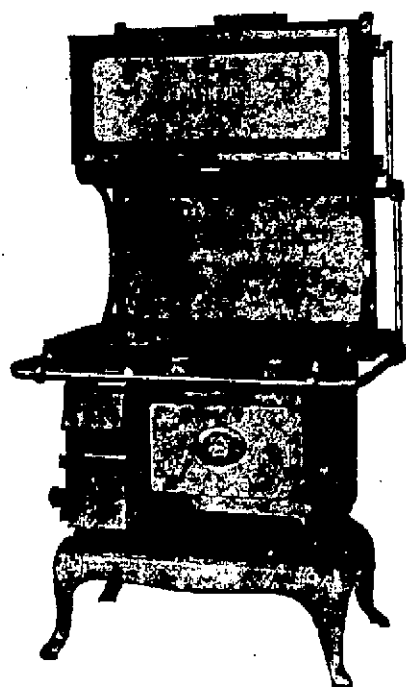

He, too, now was blushing brilliantly at memory of that swift, sudden rush of romantic tenderness which this girl had witnessed when this girl had witnessed that memorable day on Owl Marsh.

Local Women Adopt Resolution Endorsing Candidacy Of Judge Mrs. Florence Allen

A meeting in the interest of Judge Florence E. Allen of Cleveland, who is a candidate for a place on the supreme bench of Ohio, was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Pearl Selby, Mrs. William Schwartz was elected chairman of the meeting and Mrs. George Jordan, secretary. During the meeting the qualifications of Judge Florence E. Allen for the high position she seeks were explained by Hazel K. Hite, state organizer for the candidate, who has been in Portsmouth several days after a visit in Ironton. After Miss Hite had made her talk the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, Florence E. Allen, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Cuyahoga County, is a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio, and is exceptionally well fitted by education, training and experience, to fill this responsible office, and

Whereas, there can be no question as to her American ideals and Christian principles, therefore be it

Resolved: That we, the undersigned, endorse Florence E. Allen for Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio and commend her to the voters of Scioto county.

Signed:—
Linnie H. Coverston, Louanna Morrow, Edith Treanhart, Mrs. L. V. Fowler, Anna G. Fowler, Mrs. L. G. Williams, Vere Crawford, Margaret Crawford, Ethel C. Schwartz, Mrs. W. A. Eichelberger, Mrs. P. E. Selby, Mary K. Reed, George Jordan, Miss Pearl Eichelberger, Mrs. Geo. Selby, Miss Edna Streich, Mrs. C. B. Treanhart, Mrs. G. W. Martin.

Although Ironton has organized a Florence E. Allen Club, plans are for to speak here early next month, at which time her many friends in Ironton and Lawrence county will come here to meet her and hear her address. Judge Florence Allen is Judge of the Court of Common Pleas at Cleveland.

In order to get her name on the ticket she had to have 20,000 persons sign her petitions, but she obtained this number in her own county alone, and in the entire state over 43,000 signatures.

Judge Allen, who is the only woman in the country in her present high judicial position, is making her run on an independent ticket because she believes that politics should have no place in the courts.

Masque Dance Well Attended

Over 100 couples crowded Ben Hur ball last night when Delta Camp Royal Neighbors held a masque dance and social affair. The Camp cleared a neat sum on the dance. Music was furnished by Journey's orchestra.

The prize for the best costumed couple went to Dorothy Coriell and Mildred Lozier who were presented with a box of candy. The dance committee included Mrs. Mary Sutton, Mrs. Hannah Edgington, Mrs. Fannie Mays, Mrs. Sadie Weeks, Louis Zuckler and R. E. Sutton.

At a short business session held before the dance one candidate, Blanch Moritz was obligated.

Not To Enforce New Ban On Ships Until October 17

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Prohibition officials said today that enforcement of the new ban against liquor on ships probably will be stayed generally until October 17, as a result of the restraining order returnable on that date, issued by Federal Judge Hand of New York.

J. J. Britt, chief counsel of the prohibition unit, declared that although technically the restraining order would halt enforcement of the new ruling only in Judge Hand's district, by implication, the stay would also apply throughout the country generally. Mr. Britt conferred with Secretary Mellon prior to the meeting of the cabinet today, discussing the draft of the notice to be sent to ship owners and the temporary instructions to customs officers being drawn up for their guidance in the clamp-down on liquor on board ships.

It was indicated the subject was one of those to come up for discussion by the cabinet with a view to drafting a general policy.

Red Cross Mission To Handle Refugee Situation In Greece

ATHENS, Oct. 13.—(By The Associated Press)—The United States government through its charge d'affaires here, Jefferson Caffery, has taken steps for the dispatch to Greece of an American Red Cross mission to handle the refugee situation here.

News of this action, coupled with the announcement that the Red Cross has donated an additional $100,000 for relief work, has immediately cheered the Greek people.

The tragedy of the refugee problem lies in the fact that virtually all able-bodied Greeks and Armenians in Asia Minor were deported into the interior as prisoners of the Turks and that the Greeks must succor several hundred thousand women and children who will henceforth have no husbands and fathers to provide for their wants.

K. Jennings, a Y. M. C. A. worker from Syracuse, N. Y., arriving here from Mitylene, has been informed by wireless that 25,000 more refugees without food or clothes are awaiting rescue on the shores of Asia Minor, near Adalia and Makri. Steps are being taken to save them.

Removed Home.
Miss Jessie Watts, who had been a patient in Mercy hospital, has been removed to her home, 1530 Poplar street in the Enrick-Rawson ambulance.

JUST DRAGGED SO WEAKENED

Florida Lady Was In a Miserable Condition, But Says She Found Cardui Helpful and Got Well

Blountstown, Fla.—In explaining how she found Cardui so helpful during change of life, Mrs. Ella M. Bailey of this place said:

"I became so weakened it was an effort for me to get around. I knew what was the matter, but I felt like I couldn't give up.

"I just dragged, and I certainly was nervous. I was so restless I could not sit down long—yet so weak I couldn't get about. It is a most miserable and such a helpless feeling.

"I would get depressed and out of heart.

"I began to feel, after awhile, there was no use in trying to get well. This is all wrong, for it makes a person worse.

"I had heard of Cardui, and thought it might strengthen me. A neighbor had used it with good results.

"I took one bottle of Cardui, then I saw I wasn't so nervous, so I kept it up.

"Gradually the nervousness left me. I began to eat and sleep better. Was soon well and all right.

"Cardui did wonders for me, and I certainly do recommend it.

"Thousands of other women have written to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others.

Cardui has stood the test of extensive use, for more than forty years, in the treatment of troubles common to women.

Good druggists, everywhere, sell Cardui, the women's friend. Try it.

...that made up the story of the flight in the life boats and the rescue. There was no opportunity for much that was of importance to be transmitted, but the rescuers and rescued did find time to write and sign and have sent a message expressing their appreciation of the fight made by Captain H. H. Lester, of the City of Honolulu against the fire and his crew for their comfort and safety afterward and of the unselfish service of Captain Watkins' rescue. The rest was left for today.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The City of Honolulu is the third former German liner to figure in a mishap, while sailing from a Pacific port. The first was the Mount Vernon, some time called the Kron Prinzessin Cecilie, and the second was the Empress of Australia, formerly the Von Tirpitz.

The Mount Vernon suffered a whole chapter of accidents soon after she came to this coast several years ago. Mysteriously she broke down were the rule rather than the exception while she was engaged in ferrying homeward from Vladivostok the Czechoslovak soldiers of the Siberian expeditionary force and the Russian regiments marooned there by the Soviets eastern advance.

The Empress of Australia had to put back to port a few days ago when it was found her main shaft was out of line.

The misfortune of the City of Honolulu however, was by far the greatest of the series.

ON BOARD UNITED STATES ARMY TRANSPORT THOMAS, October 13.—(By Wireless to the Associated Press)—Captain Harry R. Lester of the liner City of Honolulu, and a mate were overcome by smoke and flames in investigating the fire which destroyed their vessel, but quickly recovered, it was revealed on board the Thomas today.

Officers of the City of Honolulu attributed the fire to defective electric wiring in the second cabin.

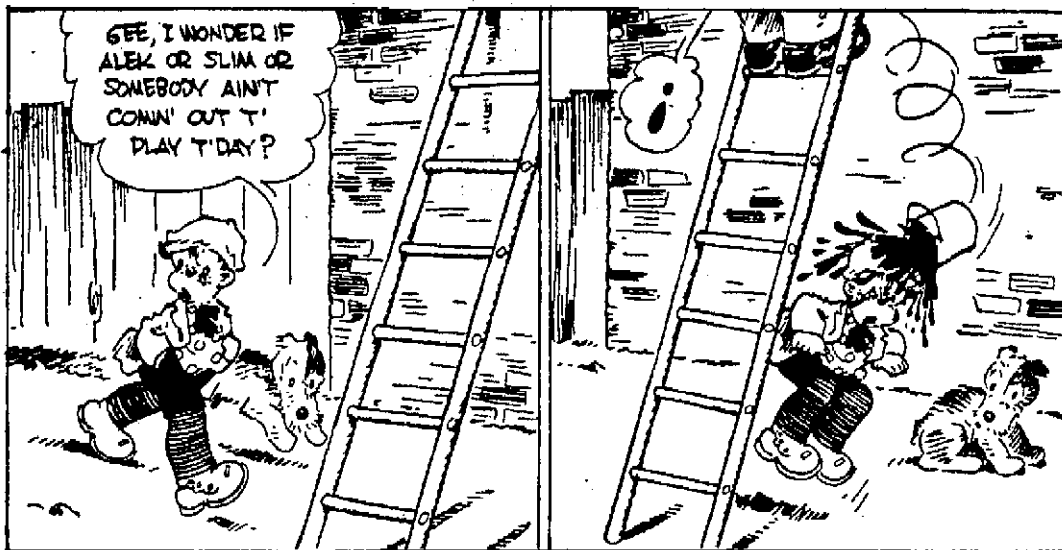

There were no injuries suffered by any of the fire victims. Everyone was in good spirits. Water was pumped into the burning compartment of the Honolulu as long as possible, but the fire gained rapid headway into the super structure.

The water in compartments caused a dangerous list to port and the boats were lowered only with great difficulty. Later the Honolulu slowly righted, making the work of abandonment easier. The captain and crew made continued efforts to quench the fire after getting the passengers clear, but were soon forced to abandon the ship which they did about 9:10 a. m.

About that time the Thomas received a wireless saying: "We are abandoning ship. Goodbye."

The passengers were in the boats about seven hours. The Thomas steaming south, saw the first glow of the burning ship at 12:30 a. m. reaching the scene of disaster at 1:00 a. m.

WATER FROM RIVER JORDON WILL BE USED IN BAPTISMAL RITES SUNDAY

The Trinity Church Bulletin says, "L. W. Bragdon brought home from Palestine a flask of water from the Jordan River and presented it to the pastor, Rev. W. C. Millikan. Through a small package, it added a good deal of care to the disposal of the baggage for the balance of the trip. The pastor invites mothers who have children to baptize to bring them on next Sunday morning, October 15th, if it is convenient, and this water will be used in the baptisms."

The Woman's Home Missionary Society will serve a chicken supper in the church Thursday evening, October 26th. The tickets are on sale for sixty cents. This can be made a fine social occasion.

Coach Howard Jones, of Iowa, looked around for his brother, Tad, Yale head coach, but did not see him and it was not until later, at the hotel, that the brothers met.

Shipping Board Ships To Remain Dry Despite Federal Injunction

WASHINGTON, October 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Shipping board vessels will remain dry regardless of the outcome of the injunction proceedings brought in New York on behalf of the American privately owned ships. It was announced today by Chairman Lusk.

President Harding holds, the chairman said, that government owned vessels are American territory and under Attorney General Daugherty's ruling come under the terms of the Volstead act, regardless of whether the American private ships succeed in remaining wet.

Another notice to ship owners of the Attorney General's ruling and temporary instructions to customs officers were sent out today by Secretary Mellon, but it was said, the customs regulations would be subject to the temporary restraining order issued by Judge Hand in New York.

In the enforcement of the ban against liquor aboard foreign ships in American waters, officials said "the rule of reason" will apply with regard to application of the forfeiture provisions of the prohibition act. Mr. Mellon was said to take the view that provisions for the act enabling seizure of foreign vessels was "the extreme penalty" to be invoked only when enforcement officials were satisfied that liquor on board was destined to find its way into the United States illegally.

The treasury also was declared to incline to the view that ships whose crews customarily are served wine with their meals should be excepted from penalty for bringing such liquor within the three mile limit, although stocks above the quantity necessary for the use of the crew in port probably would have to be sealed up. Medical liquor will be permitted aboard both American and foreign ships.

Back To Mundane Dish Cloth After "Career" On The Farm

CHICAGO, October 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Margaret Davis, the 14-year-old tomboy, who gave her parents a four day scare and was almost given up as "robbed, sick and body disposed of" by the police, came back to mundane dish cloths and school books today, convinced that all roads of destiny do not lead to treasure islands and Huck Finn rafts and caves.

Margaret's road took her briefly by automobile and at length afoot into a rural village and finally led to stables, pitch forks and hungry cows. She pitched straw one day with fervor the next with disgust and admitted on her return home that it was the third day's straw that broke the camel's back and took all the romance out of life.

After leaving home early Monday and making her way to Roselle, Illinois, attired in khaki knickers, the girl hacked off her hair, had a barber give it a professional turn, bought cigarettes and overalls and as Dick Davis, attached herself to the stable staff of a dairy farm nearby.

Although Dick's pretty swaggar was contemplated to ward off prying glances, the farmer and his wife became suspicious. Dick tried to pro-note herself from cigarettes to a corn-cob pipe and plug tobacco. The suspicious were not allayed, and when, on the third day she found that straw pitching was to be her routine, she gave in and confessed her identity.

She will return to her classes at high school next Monday by which time her parents figure her missing muscles will have recovered.

383 Structures Will Be Razed

The Chillicothe Gazette says: According to an unofficial list of the number of buildings to be auctioned off at Camp Sherman on October 26, 383 structures will be placed on the block. The list includes 156 of the small buildings in Sections "C" and "D"; 26 in "AA" and "BB"; 270 east of Columbus avenue and 57 west of Columbus avenue.

From this it is apparent that the stretch of land along the river bank is to be cleared off.

Fire Destroys Liner At Sea; Passengers And Crew Are Saved

THE ILL FATED CITY OF HONOLULU

This is the immense liner, which was destroyed by fire Thursday, when it was homeward bound to San Pedro, Cal., from Honolulu and was 1,047 miles east of Honolulu and 670 miles southwest of San Pedro when the fire started. The liner carried 72 passengers and 145 officers and members of the crew.

total of 217. All passengers and crew on the burning steamship were rescued. More than ordinary interest was attached to the burning of the steamship by Dr. D. A. Perault of Gallia street, as just 25 years ago he went from New York to Bremen on the ship that was destroyed yesterday.

he then being enroute to Vienna and Berlin to study medicine. Dr. Berndt still has vivid recollection of the steamer, which was formerly known as The Kaiser Friedrich der Grosse, a German liner. He has in his possession a post card picture of the ill-fated boat from which the above picture was made.

Cheatwood Says Winter To Be Dry And Cold

Dave Cheatwood, the goose-bone weather prophet, was in the city today and incidentally gave out the first installment of his weather predictions. He says we are now having Indian summer and will continue to have it through October and the forepart of next month. Cheatwood says it will probably snow before we have a killing frost, and that the winter will be dry and very cold. The first snow will fall between the 5th and 10th of December and there will probably be a small flood about February. He says the Ohio river has been the lowest during the past few weeks since 1894. Mr. Cheatwood returned the first of the week from a two months' visit with friends in Toledo, and with his three brothers who reside in Bowling Green, Ohio. While in the latter city he said it was a common sight to see wagon loads of tomatoes, three miles long, going to the canning factories, there to be made into ketchup. New corn sells at fifty cents per hundred in the northern part of the state, instead of by the bushel, as is customary here. Stretching his imagination a bit, the amateur prophet says we will have a wet summer next year, followed by a very cold winter in 1924. He also says the first five days of November will foretell the number of snows we are to have this winter.

Floyd Unger, 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Unger, of 1718 Highland avenue recently had the plaster cast removed from his left ankle which was operated upon by a Cincinnati specialist. He was getting about on crutches, but several days ago he fell with his crutches and in the fall suffered a broken left leg above the knee. An X-ray taken at his home today by Virgil Fowler, showed the leg to be broken.

Grable To Accept Two Cent Increase

CHICAGO, October 13.—(By the United Press).—Settlement of the dispute among members of the United States Railroad Labor Board over the amount of the wage increase to be given maintenance of way workers, appeared near today. The agreement was expected to follow receipt of a telegram by Walter McMenen, a labor representative of the board, from Edward S. Grable, president of the maintenance of way union, in which the union head, while protesting the insufficiency of a 2 cent an hour increase, as proposed, intimated that it would be acceptable.

Lads Who Break Into Local Armory Given Light Sentences By Judge Peck

CINCINNATI, October 13.—Harry Withrow and Robert Nichols, Portsmouth, Ohio, indicted for stealing government property, pleaded guilty in the U. S. district court here today and were sentenced by Judge Peck to 30 days in the Scioto County jail.

The Withrow lad is a son of Curtis Withrow, former C & O telegraph operator, who is now serving a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary for the killing of Hugh Nichols and his wife, father and step-mother of Robert Nichols, at the Barhoe home, near Sciotoville, last New Year's night. The offense for which the youths were sentenced was the burglary of the armory of Battery B in the Massie Block, Second and Market streets, last May and stealing army pistols and other government property.

Pendleton Draws Fine; Jail Sentence Suspended

"Bud" Pendleton, Front street young man, was found to be guilty of assault and battery upon Evelyn Whitman by Judge McCall at a hearing in Municipal court Friday and he was handed a fine of $25 and costs and thirty days in the county jail but the jail sentence was suspended on condition that he stay away from the Whitman woman and get a job and go to work. The Whitman woman, who claimed that Pendleton stabbed her in the leg with a knife, was also given the alternative of going to work or spending a time at the state prison for women at Marysville.

Police News

For intoxication R. K. Blair was fined $11.20 by Judge McCall in Municipal court Friday and for disorderly conduct William Postwick was penalized $10 and costs. They were arrested for starting a disturbance at the Manhattan Hotel last night. John Wislon took aboard a cargo of "moon" which caused him to kick up a disturbance at Young and Robinson avenue last night with the result that the police got the noisy one. He drew the usual $11.20 for intoxication.

YOUNGSTOWN, October 13.—(By the Associated Press).—Paul Morris, a photographer and a member of the board of education, today gave to newspapers a photo he took last night of a meeting of the Ku Klux Klan, showing several scores of men in Klan regalia kneeling about a flaming cross with hands upraised as if taking an oath. Morris was asked by telephone yesterday to take a picture of a "Columbus Day party". He was put into an automobile with curtains down and driven to an unidentified place where he took the picture. He says the men who accompanied him were all unknown to him.

All boys are asked to appear in full Boy Scout regalia with their merit and credit badges. The picturization will probably take about one or two hours. Scout Executive Henderson will be on hand to direct and assist in the making of the picture.

Two scenes were shot this afternoon, the first finishing up the "Three Children" picturization of Family Relief work as handled by Jean Clare. The scenarios were written by Miss Virginia Life of the Scioto County Red Cross. Promptly at three o'clock the scene showing Girls' Protection work was shot at the Washington Hotel. The management in charge of the production of this motion picture wish to remark upon the extreme courtesy and the hearty co-operation which marked every man, woman and child, assisting the Bureau yesterday in location and loaning of properties. It is a splendid thing when the community at large realizes the work the Bureau is doing and responds in such hearty co-operation.

VANCEBURG, Ky., Oct. 13.—S. Cleveland Tackett, of 3953 Stanton avenue, New Boston, O., was tried in the Circuit Court here today for the stealing of a row boat from E. H. Green at St. Paul, Ky. The alleged theft occurred August 15th last. On August 15th Green came down the river in search of his boat. He saw Tackett asleep on a flat boat which was tied to the shore near Buena Vista, Ohio. He obtained a search warrant and found his boat concealed under the flat boat on which Tackett was sleeping. Tackett was arrested, brought to Vanceburg and lodged in jail, where for want of bail, he has remained till he was taken out and tried today and sentenced to three years at hard labor in the state prison. James Cyrus, who was with Tackett and claimed to own the flat boat on which they were traveling, was also arrested and brought to Vanceburg.

It developed that a warrant was awaiting Cyrus here, and he was immediately transferred to Chillicothe. At Chillicothe Cyrus was tried for attacking the sheriff of that county.

Two john boats and several sets of fine harness were found in the possession of these men. It was discovered that a number of sets of harness had recently been sold by them to farmers in this vicinity. Most of this property has since been restored to farmers living in and around Chillicothe and Portsmouth, who came to Vanceburg and identified their property.

BITTER RIVALS CLASH WHEN P. H. S. MEETS CRACK IRONTON ELEVEN TOMORROW

Gridders In Fine Shape; Record Crowd Will Attend

Portsmouth High School warriors were put through a stiff practice session Thursday afternoon on the Sixteenth street field. The chilly weather seemed to put more life and vigor in the gridiron warriors and they went through the practice session in rapid fire order. Many new plays, the result of last Saturday's game with Ceredo-Kenova, have been developed and they will be tried for the first time on the Ironton high school eleven tomorrow afternoon.

The High School students who crowd the sidelines may also be surprised with one or two new faces appearing in the local lineup. "Bill" Moore, who was out two weeks with two broken ribs, is back into the game and the way he tore holes through the line and carried the ball yesterday showed that he has the stuff that is needed of regulars. Morris and Shields, who have been holding down one halfback position, will have to look to their laurels if they do not want Moore to step in and play that position. Not only does Moore get through the line when he carries the ball, but he is a dead sure tackler and his one big feature seems to be getting through and throwing the ball carrier for a loss. He turned the trick a number of times during the scrimmage yesterday afternoon.

Quarterback Elmsor suffered a twisted leg yesterday afternoon and had to lay off for the remainder of the afternoon. He will do his best to play the entire game Saturday, but should be able to retire to the sidelines, "Dude" Moore, Duduit or Sarver are ready to step into his place.

All the rest of the regulars are in tiptop shape and ready to get into the battle, which will start at 2:30, prompt, tomorrow afternoon.

Ironton's papers are not saying much about the High School team as players, and from articles published are relying upon the football fans of that school to beat Portsmouth. Each article urges no less than 300 students to accompany the team so they will turn in a victory.

The Ironton News had the following to say about the big battle: "Every student knows that Ironton and Portsmouth are bitter rivals in every line of sport, and have been for a great number of years.

"Year before last the two teams played a tie game, the score being 2 to 2. Last year Portsmouth beat Ironton by a score of 14-0. Students, we must beat Portsmouth this year if it is the last thing we ever do."

And listen to this: The team cannot go to Portsmouth alone, without paybackers, and beat them. There must be rooters—at least three hundred of them. Is there any reason why three hundred of the twelve hundred students in High School should not go to Portsmouth and help the team to defeat them? No, there is no reason, unless it is absolute lack of interest and school spirit."

CAPTAIN BROCK

Captain Tommy Brock, who plays an end on the P. H. S. eleven, is showing better form than ever this season. He is mixing in every play and when it comes to spilling the defense and making tackles, he is always on the job. He is expected to play an important part in the P. H. S. Ironton hi game tomorrow afternoon.

Wooster Plays Case Saturday

WOOSTER, O., Oct. 13.—The Wooster football game at Cleveland Saturday is expected to attract at least 1500 Wooster fans. In the first place because a "hot" football game is expected, and in the second place, because the game has been designated as Wooster's annual Emigration Day.

Special cars over the Cleveland-Southwestern Traction Company's lines are expected to bring 1000 rooters to Cleveland from here, and 500 alumni of the college in Cuyahoga county are to rally for the game under the leadership of Arthur P. Blasser, Cleveland.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Joe Beckett, British heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Frank Moran, American heavyweight, when the referee stopped the bout, owing to an injury to one of Moran's legs.

SMOKE HOUSE TEAM IN FINE TRIM

Baltimore Beats St. Paul

ST. PAUL, MINN., Oct. 13.—Jack Ogden hurled superb ball for the Baltimore Orioles Thursday, letting St. Paul down with two hits and the International League champions clubbed to within one victory of the Minor League championship title, defeating the Saints 5 to 1.

Today's victory gave the Orioles four games to the Saints' one in the "Little World Series." The sixth game is scheduled for Saturday, both teams wishing to take an off day on "Friday the 13th." A Baltimore win Saturday will give them the series.

In the second inning a walk and two singles gave the Saints the first run of the game. In the first of the third, however, the Birds routed the hopes of the Saints fans by clouting Martin out of the box, while his uncertain support aided the International to count five runs. Score:

Baltimore 605 000 000—5 7 0

St. Paul 010 000 000—1 2 5

Ogden and McAvoy; Martie, Sheehan and Gonzales.

Team Is Off For Washington

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13.—(By The Associated Press)—Twenty-two members of the University of Cincinnati football squad left last night on their way to Washington, where they are to meet the Georgetown University eleven on Saturday.

Arriving at Harper's Ferry this morning the players will spend the day there, taking their final practice, and go on to Washington Saturday morning.

George W. McLaren, head coach, declined to make any prediction regarding the outcome of the contest other than to say that Georgetown would know she had been in a hard game.

"Hecky" DeVoss is to be seen in the backfield of the Smoke House eleven this coming Sunday with the locals meet the Washington C. H. eleven at Millbrook park.

O. U. Clashes With Denison

ATHENS, O., Oct. 13.—Ohio University's eleven, after a week of the hardest sort of workouts, is ready for what local football fans consider the "big" game of the year here tomorrow with Denison. Practice during the week was held behind closed gates at Ohio Field; when weather conditions did not permit outdoor work, night sessions were held in the gym by the coaches.

THIS IS A FAMILY AFFAIR

When Yale meets Iowa Saturday it will be a battle of wits between the Jones Brothers.

HOWARD JONES

The meeting on the gridiron between Yale and Iowa will be more or less of a family affair as far as the coaches are concerned.

Iowa, which won the "Big Ten" football championship in the west last year, is coached by Howard Jones.

Yale is looked after by Brother Tad. The meeting between Yale and Iowa will also offer an opportunity to get an early line on the strength of the east and west in football.

It is to be regretted that Iowa did not meet Yale last year. The Iowa eleven, led by Aubrey Devine, would have given Yale the battle of its life.

Possibly this year's eleven will make things as interesting, despite the fact that Howard Jones lost four of his star players through graduation.

Yale in the big games last year showed a team that had much potential strength, but many of the players lacked experience. On form the Yale team of this year should be considerably stronger than the 1921 aggregation.

These two great teams will clash at New Haven, Conn., Saturday, Oct. 14.
